"Cross Currents"

A video sculpture for projector and camera for the Café Gallery. Commissioned with Camerwork as part of "River Crossings"

"Cross Currents" is a video installation which produces a composite image made from aspects of both the gallery and adjacent lido. A pre-recorded video sequence of an underwater swimmer is electronically blended with an image constructed from elements of the pool. Displayed around the walls are laser prints from key frames of the swimming sequence. The effect in the gallery space of a miniature pool and swimmer – complete with the sounds of gently splashing water, combine with an image of the lido which is visible from the window.
