Dear Steve,

As requested, here are 12 catalogues for the college. And a fine investment they are too. I've also given you an additional 5 for your own usage.

I think 'Interrun' worked extremely well on the wall and you'd obviously taken a great deal of time and care in considering how to most effectively make work for such a tricky configuration. All the British work had great merit and I'm just sorry that the thing wasn't up and running as it should have been when most people were around. Still, according to the Tate, over 30,000 people went into the Video Positive '89 exhibition and that's something we can all be pleased about.

As soon as I get some tedious bits and pieces out of the way I'll be looking seriously at the 21 TV pieces exhibition proposal and I hope to come up to see you both about it before Easter.

Best wishes,

Eddie Berg
